

Workshop

Add Culture

This workshop is dedicated both to those new to audio description as well as to those with considerable experience. Actually the more varied the group the better the results of this workshop that will also be a scientific experiment.

During our workshop we will tackle the issue of audio describing cultural references. First we will see (with our eyes closed) and discuss examples of different strategies used in audio describing cultural references. Then we will create AD ourselves. We will work on a variety of international films (in various languages but always with audio subtitles in English). In this way all participants will be able to actually „feel” the difference between preparing AD to films from known and unknown cultures.

Anna Jankowska, PhD, is an experienced audio describer and AD trainer. She is the president of the Seventh Sense Foundation which campaigns for and provides accessibility and researcher at the Jagiellonian University in Kraków, Poland.
